In addition to his acting career, Douglas was also a passionate collector of art and artifacts. He amassed a vast collection of paintings, sculptures, furniture, and other objects from around the world. His collection, known as the By George Collection, is now housed at the Kirk Douglas Theatre in Culver City, California.

The By George Collection is a testament to Douglas's passion for collecting and his love of art. The collection includes works by some of the most famous artists in history, including Picasso, Matisse, Renoir, and Monet. It also includes a number of rare and unique artifacts, such as a suit of armor that once belonged to Henry VIII and a first edition of the Gutenberg Bible.

Douglas was particularly fond of Western art and artifacts. The By George Collection includes a number of paintings and sculptures of cowboys and Indians, as well as a collection of Native American artifacts. Douglas was also a fan of boxing, and the collection includes a number of boxing gloves and other memorabilia.

The By George Collection is a valuable resource for scholars and collectors alike. It provides a glimpse into the life and mind of one of the most iconic figures in Hollywood history. The collection is also a reminder of the importance of art and culture in our lives.
