The series is set against the backdrop of the Renaissance, a time of great change and upheaval. Europe is on the cusp of a new era, and Patterson finds himself at the center of some of the most important events of the time. He travels from England to Italy to the Ottoman Empire, meeting with kings, popes, and scholars. He also encounters pirates, spies, and assassins.

Through it all, Patterson remains a man of mystery. His motivations are complex and often difficult to understand. Is he a hero or a villain? A man of science or a man of faith? The reader is left to decide.
